HAIR DYE. MONKEY'S parrots and dogs may be taught to imitate some of the outward forms and actions of humanity-and foxes manifest an notness in stealing quite equal to the generality of manking—but to man alone is given the ability to originate, contrive and construct, and even the animal seems to divide by his own acts his species into the different geni of men, or orginators, contrivers and constructors—and mon-keys parrots and foxes, or imitators, preteaders and speculators. Mark the exemplification. Wm. A. Batchelor, of 233 Broadway, New York Wm. A. Batchelor, of 223 Broadway, New York, having by perseverance and years of toil and costly experiments, succeeded in producting a Hair Dye, for which he has received fifteen Meddals and Diplomas—and, by all, admitted to be perfect in all respects, a host of imitating monkeys and piratical pretenders, who always beset the paths of genius and toil, and to take advantage of the wit they do not possess themselves, have spring upon the trail laid out by "Batchelor." With peculiar pertinacity they beset and worry with pretentious stories and bravado; every one who will listen to them, and they frequently succeed in gaining credit for they frequently succeed in gaining credit for themselves and trash. To guard the unsuspecting, the original and genuine Win. A. Batch-elor's Hair Dye is now put up with costly steel plate engraving, and his signature thereon on lour sides of the box, and the address, 233 Broadway, New York.
